NMAIMH's mission is to promote and support healthy development and nurturing relationships for all infants and young children in New Mexico. NMAIMH was incorporated in 2004 to provide a forum for interdisciplinary collaboration by advocating for the application of infant mental health principles in services for infants, young children and caregivers. NMAIMH works to implement a Strategic Plan for Infant Mental Health in New Mexico (2003).

NMAIMH Making a Difference

Promoting & supporting healthy development and nurturing relationships for all infants and young children in New Mexico.

Frequently Asked Questions - #1

What is the NMAIMH Endorsement Process? A process that supports the development and recognition of infant and family professionals within an organized system of culturally sensitive, relationship-based learning and work experiences that promote infant mental health.

Who will be able to apply?

All New Mexico Association for Infant Mental Health members (and members from other IMH associations) who have experience working with or on behalf of infants, toddlers, parents and/or other caregivers and meet the educational training and reflective supervision requirements as specified at each level.

Why apply for the NMAIMH Endorsement? Neurons to Neighborhoods (Shonkoff & Phillips, 2000), reports there is a critical shortage of well trained professionals who have the knowledge, skills and supervised work experience to promote healthy social and emotional development, and to intervene and treat serious early childhood mental health problems. By engaging in the endorsement system, you will:

- Grow and develop as a professional in the rapidly expanding infant and family service field.
- Be recognized by employers and peers for having attained a level of competency in culturally sensitive, relationship-based practice that promotes infant mental health.
- Become a part of one of the first and most comprehensive efforts to identify best practice competencies at multiple levels and across disciplines and to offer a pathway for professional development in the infant and family field.

What is Reflective Practice?

Interest in reflective practice and supervisory support is growing as rapidly as interest in the social and emotional well being of babies, toddlers and preschool age children. Whether trained as a mental health professional, a health professional, a social worker or an early childhood professional, if you are working with children birth to age five and their families, you will benefit from supportive consultation to help you better understand yourself in relationship to the very young children and families with whom you work.

Reflective practice focuses on the development of relationships that support growth and development between supervisors and staff, staff and families, and parents and children. It is within these relationships that learning and change is able to take place. It is more a way of being than a way of doing (Zero to Three).

If I already have a license or certification why would I need this additional endorsement?

- The New Mexico Behavioral Health Collaborative Strategic Plan for Early Childhood Mental Health supports the NMAIMH Endorsement system. Public funding sources (i.e. Medicaid, managed care, CYFD) will recognize and require that providers are either endorsed by NMAIMH or engaged in the endorsement process.
- If you work with infants, toddlers and their caregivers in any capacity, the endorsement process supports you to substantiate your current level of competence related to this important work and guides you to enhance your competencies for subsequent levels.
- New Mexico's infants, toddlers and families expect and deserve a competent workforce with skills specific to their earliest needs. Endorsement is one way to demonstrate your commitment to quality infant family services.
